

INTERNATIONAL SUMMER SCHOOL “HEALTH CARE SYSTEMS” 2024

Global perspectives on the challenges of health care and health care systems

COORDINATING UNIVERSITY: Evangelische Hochschule Berlin (Germany)

PARTICIPATING UNIVERSITIES: CHE Christlijke Hogeschool Ede (The Netherlands) |

Tunghai University (Taiwan) | University of Education Winneba (Ghana) |

IDHEP – Institut de Développement et des Hautes Etudes de Paris (France)

The International Summer School offers a two-week program (scheduled: from August 19 – 30th 2024) that focuses on the global diversity of health care and health systems. Common trends such as economization, aging populations, shortage of skilled professionals, migration and refugee flows as well as the increasing impoverishment of populations will play an important role in the program. These topics will be discussed from the perspective of different study programs as well as in an international exchange with students and teachers from different countries. At the end of the program, a workshop about future outlooks will search for perspectives and models that can function as solutions regarding these urgent issues of global health care. All students from bachelor and master programs who are involved or interested in health care issues are cordially invited to participate in this dialogue.

According to the Erasmus+ Blended Intensive Programs guideline, this event is based on a multidimensional and interdisciplinary teaching approach. In addition to group work sessions which will compare international experiences and practices, there will be experts from the different focus areas invited to share insight into theory and practice. Furthermore, field excursions to different health care institutions are planned. Berlin sightseeing will also be included as an extracurricular activity for our international participants. Students will receive 5 ETCS points for the successful participation in the program after completing a performance evaluation.

Venue: Berlin, Campus of the Protestant University of Applied Sciences Berlin (EHB)

Date: 19.08. - 30.08.2024

Application: An official application through the International Office of the EHB is required for participation. Further information will follow.
